Making Green Work: A Green Building Business Expo in the Inland Empire

What: Inland Empire Green Building + Business Expo

When: Wednesday, October 26, 2011, 2-8 p.m.

Where: the Frontier Project

10435 Ashford Street, Rancho Cucamonga, CA 91730

The second annual Inland Empire Green Building + Business Expo headlines a day of green education and networking as the Expo returns to its home in Rancho Cucamonga. IEGBBE 2011 is the event of the year for professionals across the residential and commercial sectors, from developers and designers to County municipal policy makers to Green Raters. Keynote speaker is Mr. Tom DiPrima, Executive Vice President of KB Home's Southern California division. Speaker panels include a Green Jobs Showcase, Green Financing and Incentives, Green Business Success Stories, and Municipal Green Programs. A vendor Expo will highlight a variety of companies and products within the green industry.

At IEGBBE 2011, the premier green building conference in the Inland Empire, the most pertinent and modern issues in the industry are addressed through sessions, discussions, and collaboration with engaging speakers and innovative green product exhibits. There is something for every green building professional. Cost for admission is $25 for USGBC and AIA Members; $35 for non-members.

For more information and to RSVP, visit www.usgbc-ie.org or call (877)605-7424.

The U.S. Green Building Council provides education and training on green building, as well as certifies buildings under the LEED® (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) rating system. LEED requires third-party verification that a building or community was designed and built using strategies aimed at improving performance across all metrics that matter most, including energy efficiency, improved air quality, and conservation of natural resources.
